XM Satellite Radio is a paid service; my service is paid with my money. As such, content that I pay for in no way interferes with the broadcasting of local, "free" terrestrial stations. They still get their money from advertising as much as they want that is allowed by law. Thus, the NAB, nor anyone else for that matter, has an intrinsic interest or right to limit the delivery of content via satellite radio, up to the limitations imposed by current U.S. law. Keep it that way, and reject petition 04-160. Let's protect the free market of communications, and promote competition to provide better services to the public.
